Innovating and Advocating for Community Cancer Care

JCP is the go-to forum for advancing the discussion of clinical pathways as a means to provide high-quality, cost-effective care.

Journal of Clinical Pathways® (JCP) features research and quality improvement studies, expert columns, and interviews. All print content is available online in addition to online exclusive content such as podcasts, blogs, conference coverage, and news.

WHY READERS VALUE THE JOURNAL:

Clinical pathways have been brought to the forefront as a key tool necessary to succeed in a value-based care environment. JCP articles examine how pathways reduce variability in care and resource use, mitigate patient risk, and facilitate better, more predictable outcomes.

WHAT MAKES US DIFFERENT:

While other related journals may consider healthcare economics or clinical practice research more broadly, members of the editorial panel are recognized as leaders in the clinical pathway and value-based care arena, supporting the targeted focus of JCP.

WHAT YOU'LL LEARN:

JCP facilitates practical discussion of clinical pathways as a component of a value-based care strategy; the use of clinical and real-world evidence to drive treatment decision-making; and the early learnings and experiences of all healthcare stakeholders as they implement new models to provide high-quality care, control costs, and enhance patient engagement and satisfaction.
